
ROB GEORG

"GHOST"

I have always imagined country music artists going to some huge well and drawing out albums contrasting the same things: beer and babes. But then I was blessed with both the honor and pleasure of listening to, "Ghost," by Rob Georg. "Ghost" is a poignant song in which Rob Georg guides the listener on an emotional roller coaster of loving and losing. The lyrics, coupled with Rob's classic rich tone; paint a picture of pain and heartache. Lyrics such as: "You left a novel by your chair, that I can't bear to put away..." create a beautiful narrative of life, told by more than just words; more than harmony, it's fueled by passion. The instrumentation is beautiful, classic country with a beautiful sforzando guitar strum throughout the song that really tugs at your heart strings (Pun intended) with a relaxed drum cadence, while accent instruments dance softly in the background creating a melancholy sound of beauty. The soundscape itself is a concise ballad paired with modernized country undertones, this entire piece is just beautifully orchestrated from beginning to end. If this song is at all a hint of what's to come from Rob, then I expect to hear quality music for years to come.
